

HERALD CAMERA-MEN TELL THEIR STORY

Look Out Below! Was the Watchword

Weighing a mere 7,800 pounds, this safe was lowered from twentieth floor of a New York City building when firm which owned it moved.

Killer, 15

When his grandmother, Mrs. Mary Dorr, 78, refused to let him enter home, near Phillips, Wis., Elmer Dorr, 15 (above), is said to have smashed in door and beat her to death with an iron crank. He was unconcerned over crime.

Kidnaped Girl Restored to Parents

Marta Emma Horton, 4, who was stolen from a Birmingham, Ala., hospital and sold by her abductors for $1,500, two inner tubes and a few gallons of gasoline, is shown just after she was restored to parents, Mr. and Mrs. William T. Horton, at Memphis, Tenn. Arrest of supposed kidnapers on another charge revealed whereabouts of child.

Ford Tests Planes' Worth

Amid appropriate ceremony the Henry Ford reliability airplane tour got under way the other day at the Ford airport, Detroit, Mich. Edsel Ford, son of Henry, is shown waving white flag which sent the planes off.

Slender Lines

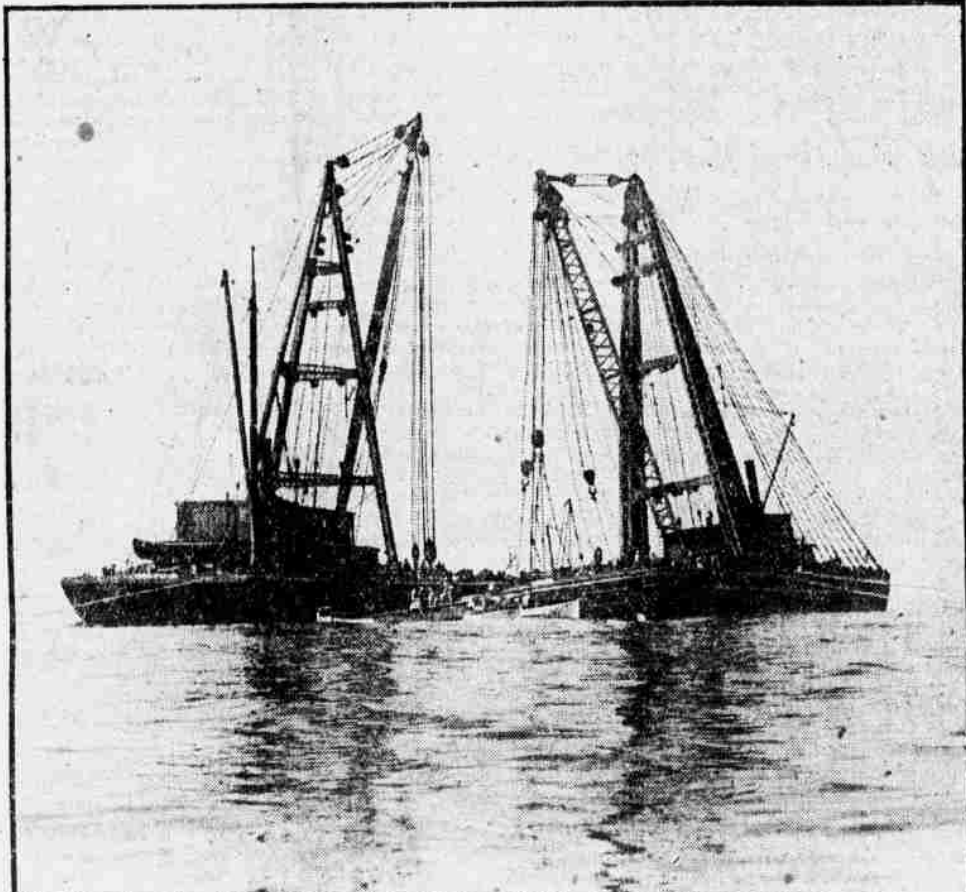

Lavender chiffon trimmed in radiating lines of shaded beads has been cleverly adapted to accentuate the slender lines in this charming new fall gown.

Young at 50

Fanny Ward, actress, who looks young despite her 50 years, was among the arrivals on the Majestic when she docked in New York City recently.

Giant Cranes Straining to Raise the Ill-Fated S-51

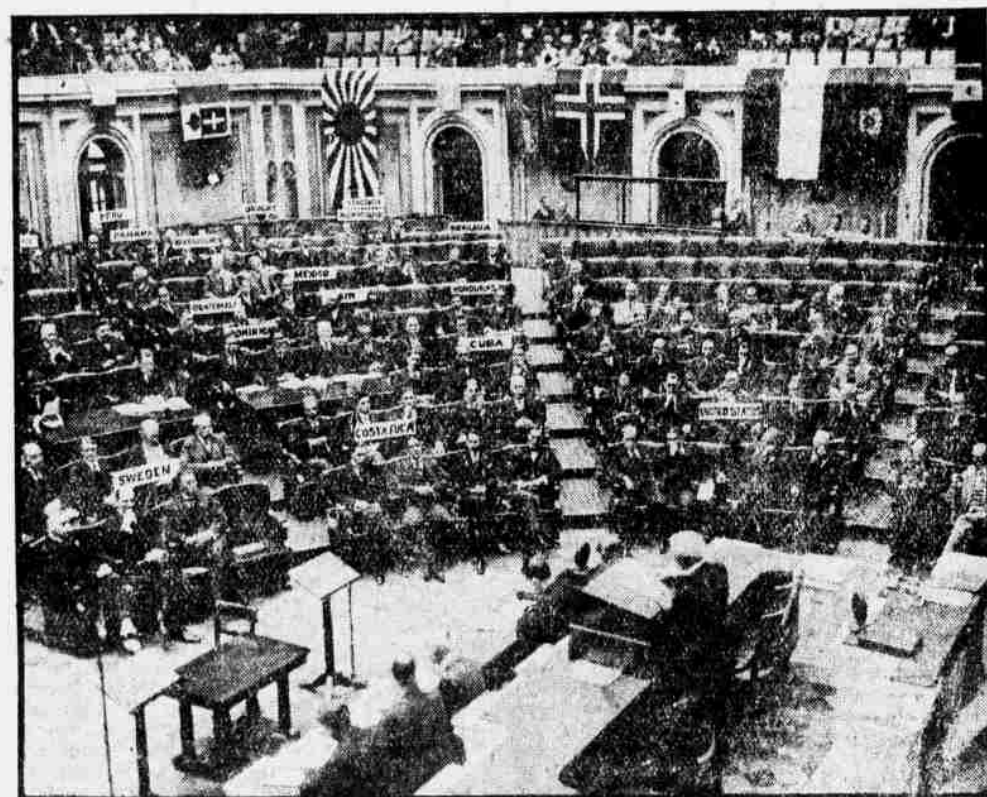

The two mighty marine cranes Monarch and Century are shown straining at the cables fourteen miles off Block Island in an effort to raise the lost submarine S-51.

Two Kinds of Beauty

An attractive touch was given annual show of American Dahlia society at 104th Regiment armory, New York City, when (l. to r.) Dorothea Anden and Ruth Andrea, a prize beauty, posed with this basket of prize winning Emma Marie dahlias. More than 1,000 exhibitors entered the competition.

Saklatvala Protests Ban Put on Him by Uncle Sam

Secretary Kellogg opening interparliamentary conference

Protest of Saklatvala, British communist, against ban by U. S. was heard opening day at interparliamentary conference at Washington, D. C.

Gem Theft

Mrs. Jessie Woolworth Donahue, daughter of the late Frank W. Woolworth, 10-cent chain store magnate, was robbed of $1,000,000 in jewelry from her suite in a New York hotel when she left bedroom for 10 minutes. Mrs. Donahue is shown wearing strands of rising pearls.

Horse Show Attracts Throng of Society Folk

One of biggest horse shows of year, the Bryn Mawr, Pa., exhibition, attracted social leaders from all over the country. Photo shows judging of hounds, which were included among many entries of distinguished.

Center of Interest

So great was interest of public in testimony of Col. William Mitchell, former assistant chief of the army air service, at the air inquiry in Washington, D. C., that this crowd jammed doorway to hear what he had to say.

Romance

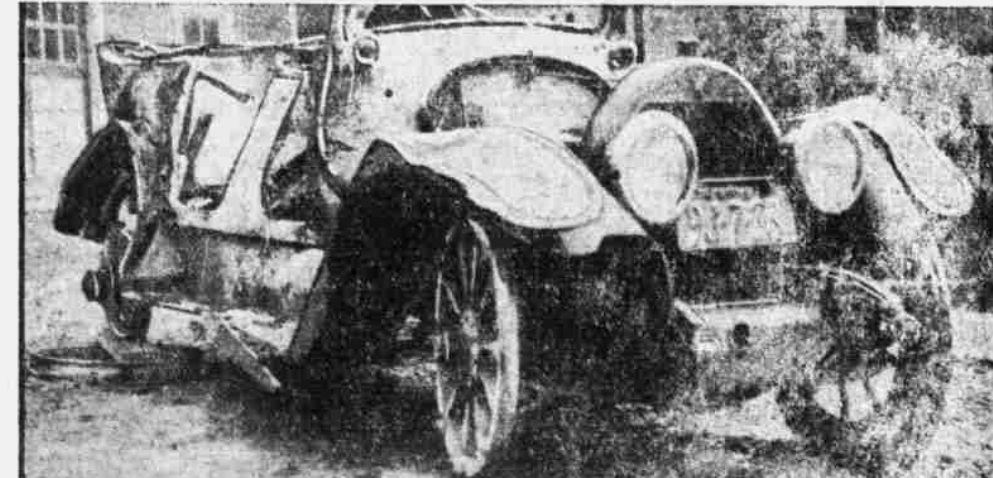

Missouri Paris sees a romance in the frequent meetings of Mrs. Woodrow Wilson and Dr. Sterling Ruffin (above) of Washington, D. C., recalling that he was reported engaged to her before her marriage to the late President Wilson. Mrs. Wilson refuses to confirm or deny the rumor.

Shapurji Saklatvala (right), Parsee Communist member of British parliament, made a fiery answer to America for forbidding him to land in this country before these Communists at Battersea, England. The red flag appears above his photograph.

Mystery Surrounds Disappearance of Insurance Man

In this machine the burned body of James H. Davis, who died six months ago, was found at Linghamton, N. Y., making the disappearance of Fred G. Beale, insurance underwriter, who was thought to have been burned in the car, more mysterious. Davis's body had been stolen from its grave.

(Copyright: 1925: Pacific & Atlantic Photos, Inc.)